Democrats debate ahead of Tuesday's primary

By CASSIA BURNS
News Correspondent

WILMINGTON — Last Wednesday night, the democratic candidates running to fill the late Jim Miceli's state representative seat this fall met at the WCTV studios in Wilmington for a debate.

The candidates debating were Mark Kratman, a Tewksbury Selectmen, Erika Johnson, the chair of the Wilmington Democratic Town Committee, Judy O'Connell, a former member of the Wilmington School Committee as well as a selectmen, Mike McCoy, a Wilmington selectman, and David Robertson, former aide to Jim Miceli.

The candidates discussed a variety of issues based on questions submitted by local community members as well as the debate's media sponsors, the Wilmington Apple and the Lowell Sun.

The issues debated included longtime problems plaguing Wilmington and Tewksbury, such as vacancies and issues along Rt. 38. In terms of the vacancies around Rt. 38, the candidates felt generally that attracting larger businesses to Rt. 38, as well as improving the roads to be able to handle larger volumes of traffic, is necessary. In particular, McCoy called on the planning boards of the towns to improve the zoning.

"They need to do a better job," he said.

Hot newer issues within the town were also discussed, such as the proposed detox center in north Wilmington. In response to this issue, the candidates shared the general belief that the detox center would be a good way to take action against the opioid epidemic, but other locations should be considered in order to cause the most limited disruptions to the lives of Wilmington residents living nearby.

Towards the end of the debate, candidates were asked to give Governor Charlie Baker a letter grade based on how well they felt he has been doing in his position. The majority of candidates gave him a generally favorable rating, averaging to about a B. However, Johnson was the only candidate to really stray from the pack, giving the governor a D- ranking, saying she feels he tries to appeal to both parties too much, therefore not getting much done.

Candidates also responded to questions concerning how they would approach the State Rep-

Seniors raise $820 for iPods for Wounded Veterans

By LIZZY HILL

WILMINGTON — iPods for Wounded Veterans hosted a pizza party at the senior center last Friday to thank the seniors for their work collecting donations for the iPods cause of injured servicemen and women.

Wilmington's seniors recently presented $820 in donations to the iPods team as they prepare to visit veterans all over New England with tools to help in their recovery process. At the celebration, he gave each of them a citation as an acknowledgement of their appreciation.

The seniors have a beading class every first and third Wednesday of the month where they make these bracelets, which are mostly donated to wounded veterans along with the hats and scarves made by the knitting club.

"[They're the ones who] make these bracelets; I just deliver them," Cardello said.

He shared that the team was completely surprised by this donation and had no idea that it was happening.

One of the organizers, Robyn Theodos, explained that they themselves were dumbfounded to count their donations at the end of the week.

"We asked the director if we could have some space and collect donations," she started. "We had a lot of bracelets and a lot of people came by."

Theodos and the other seniors tabled for one week at the senior center and gave out one of the red, white, and blue bracelets that they make for every $5 they received.

Rotary Park Story Walk OK'd by selectmen

By LIZZIE MCDERMOTT

WILMINGTON — The Rotary Park Pond is poised to become an oasis for young readers. Youth services librarian Barbara Raab answered questions from the Board of Selectmen on the library's new Story Walk project, which was ultimately approved unanimously (with one board member absent).

Raab described the story walk as individual, laminated pages of a storybook, mounted on fiberglass poles at intervals around the pond at Rotary Park. The library plans to swap the book every few months. Raab said that the library will perform all maintenance necessary, and that local youth groups will also likely be involved in the implementation and upkeep process.

"We think it's great for the families of Wilmington to be able to get out and both be physically active around the

Main Street building gaining lots of attention

By JESSICA KASPARIAN

WILMINGTON — A large industrial building at 613 Main St. is gaining attention from potential tenants after MassEcon debuted a profile of the warehouse on its ReadyMass 100 list earlier this month.

MassEcon, a non-profit working to support businesses and job growth across Massachusetts, is marketing the property to potential occupants nationwide.

"We basically market the properties to a national group of site selectors and prospects that we're working with that are considering a location in Massachusetts," Doug Kehlhem, senior director at MassEcon, said. "Once we select the properties, we put a profile up for each property on our website."

The buildings are evaluated and chosen for the ReadyMass 100 list based on criteria that MassEcon believes will be attractive to potential buyers and tenants.

Some of the building's most attractive assets listed on its profile include: close proximity to the commuter rail, access to Boston and Logan Airport, pond, and get to read a book together," said Raab.

Following a question from Board Chair Kevin Caira regarding how to ensure the posts would be securely affixed, Raab described the current project as a "pilot project," where permanency is not a primary goal.

"It may be that we come back at some point and want something a little more permanent, but for now we're just proposing these poles that go in the ground."

The Friends of the Library will be providing all of the funds necessary. Raab described the targeted median age will be preschool and early grade school, due to the fact that the books will be picture books. She said that there may be slight variation in difficulty level in future books selected, and that the library is looking into holding launch events when new books are swapped in.

Before the vote, Town Manager Jeffrey Hull drew attention to some of Raab's accomplishments at the library.

"The number of programs has doubled at the library, the number of attendees has doubled, she's brought the reading programs to the Yentile, to Silver Lake, so they're on the road, so to speak," said Hull. "So she's always looking at new ways to approach reading and inspire an interest of our young kids, so she's very instrumental in all the libraries efforts."

"I have a great director, Tina (Stewart) and I have great staff, so we really try to work hard for the families of Wilmington," answered Raab.

It's Your Money
by Todd Brisbois

WHAT MAKES A GIFT TAXABLE:

— PART I —

Taxpayers who give money or property to others may wonder about the federal gift tax and if it applies. Most gifts are not subject to the gift tax.

Here are four tax tips about the gift tax and giving:

1. Nontaxable Gifts. The general rule is that any gift is potentially taxable. However, there are exceptions to this rule. The following are nontaxable gifts:

- Gifts that do not exceed the annual exclusion amount for the calendar year,
- Tuition or medical expenses a taxpayer pays directly to a medical or educational institution for another person,
- A taxpayer's gifts to their spouse,
- Gifts to a political organization for its use, and
- Gifts to charities.

2. Annual Exclusion. For 2018, the annual exclusion amount is $15,000. Most gifts are not subject to the gift tax. For example, there is usually no tax if the taxpayer makes a gift to their spouse or to a charity. If a taxpayer makes a gift to another person, the gift tax usually does not apply until the value of the gift exceeds the annual exclusion amount for the year.

3. No Tax on Recipient. Generally, the person who receives the gift will not have to pay tax on it.

4. Gifts Not Deductible. Making a gift does not ordinarily affect the taxpayer's situation. A taxpayer cannot deduct the value of gifts they make (other than deductible charitable contributions as subject to the tax code).

History:

Spitballer 'Twirler' led Silver Lake nine

By LARZ F. NEILSON

In the early 1900s, the Silver Lake Athletic Association had an amazingly good baseball team. The team travelled by streetcar around eastern Massachusetts. They were undefeated for two years.

The captain of the Silver Lake team was its star pitcher, Eddie Neilson. In the days when the spitball was still legal, he was one of the best pitchers in New England. A semi-pro team from New Bedford offered him a contract, but he turned it down.

Eddie grew up on Chestnut Street on what the family later called "the old farm." He was born in 1889 in North Woburn, to Christian "Pop" Neilson and Stina Neilson.

A small farm is hardly lucrative, but Stina found a way to make it pay. Shortly before the turn of the century, she placed a couple of small ads in the Boston Transcript. "Wilmington, Mass. Summer boarders, wanted on farm; large, neat, airy rooms; good table, fresh vegetables, berries, milk, eggs, etc. Carriages if desired. Convenient to station. Priced reasonable. Address C. Neilson, Wilmington, Mass."

Those ads proved to be a ticket to success.

"I started more than I bargained for," Stina said.

"All the money we ever had was what Ma took in with her boarders," Eddie later told his cousin Sylvia Neilson, who wrote a family history.

Eddie worked as the janitor of the South School, lighting the fire in the stove in the morning and sweeping the floor after school. After he was done with the chores, he would go play baseball with the Wilmington High School team.

In 1907, a man from Winchester offered to buy the farm, and Pop accepted. The family had to find a new home. That same year, the Union Ice Co. put its property at Silver Lake on the market. Eddie Neilson convinced his parents to buy the Elms, the old Thompson-Harnden farm on Glen Road.

The move to the large farmhouse at Silver Lake was a good one. The lake was a popular spot. There was a streetcar line that ended at the lake, and city folk were happy to get away to a place at the lake in the summer. The Elms became so popular that the Neilsons built a large guest house on the property.

A separate parcel of Union Ice property became a ball field at the end of Cottage Street. Eddie put together a solid baseball team. His sister Dorothea kept a scrapbook of clippings about the team.

"Neilson's team trims up Woburn" was the large headline on one story. "Wilmington, accompanied by two carloads of rooters, come for victory" was the sub-head. Carloads were streetcar loads. Nobody had automobiles then.

When the game was over, the score was 10 to 5. The consolation for the Woburn team was that there was a substantial "gate."

Neilson pitched most of the games. In those days, the pitcher was also called the "twirler." A clipping for the Harvard Mills team said, "Harvard Mills Nine Defeated at Wilmington by Silver Lake A.A. — Could Not Hit Neilson."

Eddie Neilson was also a strong swimmer. With large crowds at Silver Lake, it was not uncommon for a swimmer to be in trouble. The lake was all private property and there were no official life guards. The call would go out, "Quick! Get Eddie. He saved several people, but sadly, there were cases where he could not be reached in time."

One guest at the Elms was George Webster, a principal in the Boston grocery firm, Webster-Thomas. He was quite impressed with Eddie's character and abilities and offered him a job with the firm. Eddie eventually became president of the company and developed it into one of the largest institutional grocery firms in New England.

In 1915, Eddie married Mildred Buck. They built a home on the Neilson farm, and raised three children.

In 1919, one of the guests was a boy named Thomas P. O'Neill. Decades later, "Tip" O'Neill would reminisce about the summer he stayed at the Elms. He put up in the home of Eddie and Mildred Neilson.

It is now the home of Jay and Jeanette Tighe.

Letters to the editor

Miceli, Robertson help get Brave Act passed

Dear editor,
Last week, Governor Baker signed S.2632, An act relative to veteran's benefits, rights, appreciation, validation and enforcement (The Brave Act). Dave Robertson played a large part in getting this bill enacted.

Starting over four years ago at the monthly evening office hours for Rep. Miceli at the Wilmington Town Hall, Dave listened, researched, and collaborated with the legislature legal team, and Rep. Miceli to write part of this legislation, specifically Section 5. This part of the new law acknowledges the Commissioned Officers of the United States Public Health Service (USPHS) and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) as veterans in Massachusetts. This places Massachusetts in line with the Federal recognition of USPHS/NOAA officers as veterans and provides parity with many other states.

I have worked closely with Dave Robertson on this issue over the past four years and can attest to his professionalism and attention to detail during many phone calls, strategy sessions and meetings at the state house with other legislators to move this issue forward. Dave Robertson has been Rep. Miceli's right hand man during the last several years, as anyone with a problem or issue in town knows. His mentorship by Rep. Miceli, who well represented the Wilmington area for over the 35 years I have lived in town, provided an incredible on the job training and a strong background for Dave to work in the complex Massachusetts legislative system.

Thank you Rep. Miceli for filing and supporting this legislation and for all you did for the people of Wilmington and Tewksbury for so many years. May you rest in peace.

Thank you Dave Robertson for all the work you did to get this legislation enacted and signed into law. Your enthusiasm for helping people is well suited for your chosen career in public service.

Thank you,
Mary Aruda, PhD, APRN

Why the return of school can be a blessing

By MATT FRONDUTO
TMHS Correspondent

As the curtain closes on the summer of 2018, students of Tewksbury Memorial High School prepare to leave behind a season full of warm days, late nights, and most importantly, no school. However, while plenty will find themselves begrudgingly dragging themselves into school next week, it would be wildly dishonest to suggest that there aren't countless reasons to be actively anticipating the commencement of the '18-'19 school year.

And sure, everyone has their own interests and is drawn to different areas of the high school experience, but if one searches thoroughly enough, it's clear that there could be something, somewhere, to mollify even those who haven't exactly warmed up to life in high school.

Take, for example, the Anime Club. Some might be surprised that such a niche form of art such as anime would have an entire club devoted to its appreciation, especially in the United States. Yet, if the intricacies of Japanese animated film are your bread and butter, you'll find a home quite comfortably here at TMHS. Conversely, if you're just a fan of film as an art form, you could enroll in Ms. Pelouquin's Film Appreciation and Analysis class, which, at its core, is exactly what one would imagine.

That said, it's not just in areas of leisure where students can find their wings. As years have gone on at TMHS, greater availabilities for more specialized topics have begun to take shape, essentially building smaller microcosms of topics underneath the shade of more looming topics.

Take, if you will, the massive collection of computer-based classes at Tewksbury High, the likes of which include C++ Computer Programming, Microsoft Office, and Desktop Publishing, just to make a few. These classes not only could play to ones strengths and interests, but also help prepare them for the career path which they may choose.

If someone wanted to become a Computer Science major somewhere down the line, what better way to prepare than taking a slew of classes that can sharpen your skills and give you a leg up on your future peers.

Of course, the list goes on and on in this regard, expanding to the more mathematical side of the spectrum, with statistics, engineering, personal finance, etc., while also swinging back around to the arts, including topics such as Guitar, Music Theory, and several photography classes.

My point, in essence, is that while high school may not be the peak of everyone's adolescence, there are strategies one can adopt to help make the most of provided opportunities, and who knows, maybe — just maybe — emerge from the other end as a better person.

Wilmington proves Moving Wall a moving experience

To the editor,
"The Moving Wall" is a half-size replica of the breathtaking Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington D.C., and has been touring the country for over 30 years. When John Devitt attended the 1982 dedication of the memorial in Washington, he was overcome with the sheer power and awe of the Wall. He vowed to share that experience with those who did not have the opportunity to go to the capital.

John, Norris Shears, Gerry Haver, and other Vietnam veteran volunteers built The Moving Wall now travel the USA from April through November, spending about a week at each site.

The Town of Wilmington had the honor of hosting the Moving Wall in September of 2008 and again in July of 2018. Like it did 10 years ago, the Town of Wilmington stood tall and proved once again that it will never forget its fallen heroes.

From the day the Department of Veterans Services was notified of the dates of the Wall, there was an outpouring of support and volunteerism from all corners of the town — citizens, organizations, companies all stepped up to ensure the Wall's visit would be expertly organized and respectfully observed.

The Ahern Family Charitable Foundation donated the money needed to send with the contract to hold the dates for the planned visit to Wilmington, followed by generous donations made by Nichols Funeral Home, Disabled and Limbless Veterans, VFW Post 2458 Wilmington, American Legion Post 136 Wilmington, Bob and Diana Freeland, John Wallace and Robin Theodos, Jack and Stephanie McCune, Local Heroes and the DAV CH 110.

The Department of Veterans Services reached out to Steve Crampton of Champions Choice in Wilmington regarding t-shirts to sell as a fundraiser to help fund the Wall's visit. Steve, an act of extreme generosity, offered to donate 400 shirts. Mr. Crampton and Champions Choice have always been great supporters in the past with Wilmington's sports teams and non-profits, and their generosity surely helped the Moving Wall Committee focus on planning, as opposed to raising funds. A great deal of thanks is owed to Steve Crampton. We reached out to Wilmington High School for the design of the t-shirts, and we received many great designs. The winners were Bryan Saguin, Michael DeLucia and Jason Spizuoco. all of the 2018 class.

When the Wall left the hotel to travel to Wilmington Common on the morning of the 26th, there were over 25 motorcycles representing over seven different MC Clubs, along with the Wilmington Police Department, to make sure the Wall arrived safely.

As we drove by the Public Safety building, Wilmington Police and Fire were on the street to render a salute as the Wall drove by.

If you ask the couple that travels with the Wall, they will explain how important the "base" for the Wall to sit on is. It must be straight, solid and the exact measurements. For this task, like we did 10 years ago, the Wall Committee reached out to the Carpenters Union 339 right here in Wilmington and with the help of Fred Hancox of Hancox Kitchens & Construction, they constructed the perfect base to support the Wall for the week. We would also like to thank Mike Welch of Quality Additions & Remodeling for donating the wood used to construct the base.

For the lighting of the Wall, we called on the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 103 to provide the lighting for the display. Like they did in 2008, they not only supplied the lights for the Wilmington display, the Union donated the lights to Vietnam Combat Veterans Limited so other communities that will host the Wall can use them during their display.

Mahoney's Garden Center donated the flowers that were used for the Vietnam Ribbon and placed throughout the common, and Walpole Woodworkers donated the benches that also made the display so special. New England Restrooms donated the portable restrooms and Wilmington DPW and Public Building were there right from the start to make sure everything was run correctly.

The Moving Wall not only requires a lot of help planning and set-up, it also requires 24 hour-a-day security. Volunteers are needed to assist the public with finding names of loved ones and to answer any questions they may have regarding the Wall. We would like to thank our four Night Captains, Sean Flynn, Bob Freeland, John Wallace and Rich Hersom for coordinating the hundreds of hours of volunteers and also making sure they were fed and had plenty to drink. We could not have done that without the generosity of Pizza Mia, Piezanos Pizzeria, As Good as it Gets Café, Elia's Country Store, Quinn Management

Inc. (Dunkin Donuts in North Wilmington). We also would like to thank the DAV Auxiliary for donating water, PowerAde, coffee, donuts, sandwiches and pizzas to keep the volunteers fed and hydrated during the very hot weather.

The ceremonies were held every night at 7. Each night offered a unique set of remembrances, a beautiful payment of respect to the men and women who gave the ultimate sacrifice — their names forever etched in the Wall. Wilmington High School student Ryann Walsh did an amazing job with our National Anthem on the opening night and Lowell Director of Veterans Services Eric Lamarche also started night two and the final "Welcome Home Ceremony" with his beautiful rendition. MA State Trooper Katy Downey sang our National Anthem on our Public Safety Night.

We would also like to thank the Honor Guards from Wilmington Police, Wilmington Fire, M.I.T., U.S. Coast Guard, Massachusetts Army National Guard, USS Constitution and to all the Police Departments throughout Massachusetts that sent an Honor Guard on our Public Safety Night. The Grand Aces Foundation provided the wonderful flyover on the second night piloted by Wilmington's own Boston Butters, USAF Retired. Mass State Police Air Wing provided the flyover on the Public Safety Night.

Wilmington resident Ken Meuse and Wilmington Police Officer Butch Alpers played Taps every night with Kevin Fitzgerald and Scruffy Wallace playing the bagpipes made the ceremonies that much more powerful. We would be remiss if we did not send a special thank you to our own Deacon Cliff King.

Deacon King started every ceremony with a few soulful words in an opening prayer, and offered closing prayer to cap each night. He offered words that have resonated long after the Wall's departure: "The Wall is called the Moving Wall, not only because it travels across the country, but because of all the different ways it moves people." Thank you Deacon King for your assistance with the Wall and for your service in Vietnam.

We would like to thank all the speakers that again made the ceremonies so very special: Town Manager Jeffery Hull, Greg Bendel of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, State Representative Ken Gordon, Jorge Lopez, Veterans Liaison, Congressman Seth Moulton's Office, Secretary of Veterans Services Francisco Urena, Lee Scalzilli, William McKenzie (Vietnam Veterans), and Edmund Mulvehill, Director of Veteran Services in Norwood. Thank you to all the VSO's and dignitaries from surrounding communities that read the names of their fallen war fighters.

Thank you to WPD Chief Michael Begonis for his assistance, not only running a wonderful ceremony but also with the many hours you spent with the committee, planning the entire visit. Thank you also to Mary and Gary, you know who you are, and we deeply appreciate the many many hours you spent in the office and at the Wall. And a special thank you to Tim Sullivan, US Navy Ret, Silver Star recipient and Ex. POW. Your speech was so very inspiring to so many.

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial stands as a fitting tribute to the men and women who sacrificed their lives during the Vietnam War. As of Memorial Day 2017, 58,318 names are inscribed in the polished black granite walls in Washington and the Moving Wall gives visitors an opportunity to come and see themselves reflected in the names of the fallen. Many feel compelled to leave offerings. This is where comrades and loved ones bring the weight of their sorrow, while others begin their quest for healing. Wilmington has had the honor to host the Moving Wall twice, and because of the dedication of hundreds of volunteers, we have proven once again that the Town of Wilmington will never forget the men and women that have paid the ultimate sacrifice. We will also never forget the men and women that made it home, and are able to wear the title of Veteran. We apologize if we missed anyone, we deeply appreciate everyone that was involved in making this a truly unforgettable experience.

Patriotism takes many forms. For four summer nights in the Town of Wilmington, you could see them all.

PEACE
Lou Cimaglia IV

CHELSEA — Governor Charlie Baker joined Secretary of Health and Human Services Marylou Sudders, Secretary of Veterans' Services Francisco Ureña, members of the Legislature and veterans of the United States Armed Services at the ceremonial signing of An Act Relative to Veterans Benefits, Rights, Appreciation, Validation and Enforcement (S. 2632) at the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea. Known as the "BRAVE Act," the legislation provides additional support for members of the veterans' community and their families, including tax credits and enhanced educational opportunities.

"The Commonwealth will forever be indebted to the brave men and women who put their lives on the line to defend our freedoms, and expanding services for veterans under the BRAVE Act is a small way to honor their sacrifice," said Governor Charlie Baker. "The BRAVE Act builds on Massachusetts' nation-leading support for service members and strengthens our commitment to the Commonwealth's veterans and their loved ones."

"The BRAVE Act provides important additional resources for our veterans, and we thank the Legislature for their work in passing this bipartisan legislation," said Lt. Governor Karyn Polito. "The sacrifices of veterans' families will be further recognized by this bill, through establishing annual days dedicated to honoring the Commonwealth's Gold Star Wives, Mothers and Families."

lies."

"We are grateful to our veterans and their families for their commitment, courage, and selflessness. Massachusetts prides itself on providing unparalleled access to health care, and the BRAVE Act furthers our support of our veterans' physical and behavioral health care needs," said Health and Human Services Secretary Marylou Sudders.

"The Brave Act reinforces our first in the nation status in providing services and benefits to our veteran population," said Secretary of Veteran Affairs Francisco Ureña. "I am pleased to see the legislature's bipartisan effort in support of my fellow veterans."

"As the daughter of a veteran with health challenges, I understand deeply our nation's sacred responsibility to ensure that those who protected us through dangerous times are themselves protected," said Senate President Karen E. Spilka. "The BRAVE Act will go a long way to fulfilling our promise to active-duty soldiers, veterans, and to their families, as Massachusetts continues to lead the nation in caring for veterans."

"Massachusetts has a proud history of leading the nation in military-benefit programs and service, and this new law continues that tradition by providing additional supports to our service members and their families," said House Speaker Robert A. DeLeo. "We're sending a message to our heroes and their families that the Commonwealth honors their bravery, service and sacrifice."

"This omnibus veteran's legislation assists veterans and their families with employment protections, tax exemptions, burial expenses, court programs, medical care, and also continues to recognize those who serve and who have served," said Senator Mike Rush, (D-Norfolk & Suffolk District) and Senate Chair of the Joint Committee on Veterans and Federal Affairs. "We want to ensure that Massachusetts remains number one in the nation in providing for our veterans. This legislation goes a long way in accomplishing this goal and I want to thank my colleagues in the legislature and the Baker Administration for their continued commitment to our veterans, service members and their families."

"Senator Rush and I are proud of the work we accomplished this session to improve the quality of life for our veterans and their families. The Brave Act deals with tax exemptions, paid military leave, burial expenses, rights, appreciation, validation and enforcement," said Representative John Lawn, Chairman of the Committee on Veterans and Federal Affairs. "The Brave Act also closes many loopholes in The Valor Act diversion program that was meant to help our Veterans who are dealing with PTSD and other issues from their service to our country."

Governor signs 'BRAVE Act' to benefit veterans

Highlights from the BRAVE Act include:

Designates April 5 as Gold Star Wives Day and the last Sunday in September as Gold Star Mothers and Families Day.

Establishes a Massachusetts Veterans and Warriors Agriculture Program to enhance education, training, employment, income, productivity and retention of veterans working in or aspiring to work in the field of agriculture.

Allows parents or surviving guardians of veterans, who died in service to the country, to receive a real estate credit on property beginning Jan. 1, 2019.

Increases veterans' local property tax work-off program from $1,000 to $1,500.

Allows Gold Star License Plates to be affixed to commercial vehicles.

Provides time off for veterans for Veterans Day and Memorial Day, with or without pay, at the discretion of the employer.

Requires the Department of Veterans' Services to maintain and publish a list of law firms and organizations that provide pro bono legal representation for veterans

Establishes a special commission to study cost and feasibility of exempting all cost to veterans of attending public higher education in Massachusetts.

Directs the Executive Office of Health and Human Services in consultation with the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security, to partner with a Massachusetts college or university to conduct a study relative to veterans and military members suffering from mental health or substance abuse issues related to their military service and their needs in the criminal justice system.

Extends the veterans' bonus program administered by the Treasurer to allow for the maximum amount of benefits under the program, subject to appropriation, to those veterans who served during Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom, Operation Noble Eagle, Operation Inherent Resolve and Operation Freedom's Sentinel.

At the event, the Baker-Polito Administration announced that it will be breaking ground on the new long-term care facility at the Chelsea Soldiers' Home later this year, after including state funding for a new long-term care facility at the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea as part of the Fiscal Year 2018 capital budget plan. In November 2017, Governor Baker signed legislation to fund the construction of the $199 million 154-bed Community Living Center, and in April 2018, the Baker-Polito Administration received funding authorization from the United States Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) and plans to spend approximately $70 million net of federal reimbursement on the project. The federal funding was awarded through the VA's State Home Construction Grant Program which provides reimbursement of up to 65 percent of construction costs.

The Community Living Center will provide private, "home-like" rooms for veterans in accordance with VA standards of design which promotes greater accessibility, mobility, and enhanced quality of life. Services will include physical and occupational therapy, recreational activities and greater access to the outdoors. The Quigley Memorial Long Term Care Center will be fully operational during the construction process.

DA candidate Patalano announces safe streets plan

CAMBRIDGE — Democratic candidate for District Attorney Donna Patalano announced her plan to improve road safety for everyone traveling throughout Middlesex County.

As the next District Attorney, Patalano will advocate for a cultural shift focused on making streets safer for children, seniors, and other vulnerable road users, and send a clear message that distracted and dangerous driving will not be tolerated.

Between 2015 and 2016, Massachusetts saw a 20 percent increase in motor-vehicle fatalities. Distracted driving is the most problematic factor in the rise of car-accident deaths yet, when a professional driver kills a cyclist or pedestrian, there are very rarely criminal charges filed. Currently, the procedure and posture both the police and the District Attorney use do not hold drivers accountable and do not protect vulnerable road users. It is vital that any enforcement effort be designed and evaluated to reduce any disparity of negative effect on particular populations, especially people of color, immigrants, and low-income neighborhoods. Selective or unbalanced enforcement undermines public respect for both the law and the police.

"This is the most constructive, positive plan I have seen any candidate for DA make," said bicycle advocate and attorney Andrew Fischer. "Keeping cyclists as safe as every other person on our streets and sidewalks should be a priority for the next District Attorney, and I am thrilled to know that the cycling community can count on Donna Patalano to protect all persons who trade on our streets, including bicyclists. She is the leader we need in the DA's office."

"Today, the default attitude seems to be that people walking and biking who are involved in crashes are the cause of the incident, rather than the victim," Patalano said. "This leads to investigations centered on the driver's experience in a given incident, instead of the biker's or pedestrian's perspective, and does not serve to make our community any safer. To ensure that justice is done, we need to prioritize the experience of the victim and think creatively about ways to make sure infrastructure is contributing to everyone's safety."

Priorities for improving road safety will include:

- Training: Trainings, through roll call videos or in-person, for both police and prosecutors about the law, best practices for reconstructing crashes, and the value of safe streets for every member of communities will make everyone safer.

- Supporting Victims: Cyclists and pedestrians involved in collisions deserve the same respect and dignity as any other victim.

- Clear Protocol: A clearly communicated protocol for investigating crashes involving drivers and pedestrians or cyclists, including guidelines regarding who makes up the investigative team, is critical to ensuring just outcomes. Members of the investigative team will be equipped to both assess the incident and draw conclusions about the role infrastructure plays in dangerous areas.

- Community Collaboration: As DA, I will work with partners in government and law enforcement to prioritize improving road safety at the city and town level. Sometimes, the street is not safe as designed, and we need to acknowledge when that is the case and work in concert with community members to improve.

The full plan is available on Patalano's website at <https://www.donna4da.com/on-the-issues/>.

A former defense attorney and past chair of the Board of Bar Overseers, Patalano left her most recent position as a prosecutor and the Chief of Professional Integrity & Ethics in the Suffolk County District Attorney's Office in November. She has been endorsed by former Attorney General and Middlesex District Attorney Scott Harshbarger, Democracy for America, the Progressive Democrats of Lowell, Progressive Massachusetts, Our Revolution Massachusetts, UWUA Local 369, Adam Foss, Wakefield Councilors Mehreen Butt and Julie Smith-Galvin, Cambridge City Councilor Sumbul Siddiqui, Watertown Councilor At-Large Caroline Bays, Somerville Aldermen At-Large Stephanie Hirsch and Wil Mbah, Somerville Aldermen

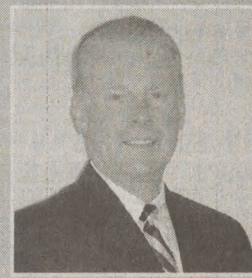

Matt McLaughlin, J.T. Scott, Ben Ewen-Campen, Jesse Clingan, and Mark Niedergang, Somerville School Committee member Andre Green, and Waltham City Council Vice Chair Robert Logan.

Patalano and her husband live in Winchester, where they raised their three children.

James Robert 'Jimmy' Landry

Helped rebuild process after hurricane Hugo

James Robert "Jimmy" Landry, age 62, of Billerica, formerly a long-time resident of Wilmington, passed away peacefully at home with his loving wife Heather at his side following a courageous battle with esophageal cancer.

Jimmy was born in Fayetteville, North Carolina, on May 6, 1956; he was the dear son of the late Gus and Lorraine Landry. Jimmy was raised and educated in Wilmington and was part of a tight-knit family.

Following graduation from high school, Jimmy, met the "love of his life" Heather MacDonald; from that point forward they were inseparable.

Jimmy worked hard and was a talented carpenter; in 1989, Jimmy and Heather departed for Charleston, South Carolina where he would be part of the rebuilding process following Hurricane Hugo's destruction to the area. The couple lived in the Charleston area for a few years before relocating to Georgia where they resided for 15 years and made many new friends.

Jimmy and Heather never forgot their roots so about 14 years ago they moved back "home" to the Wilmington area to be closer to their families.

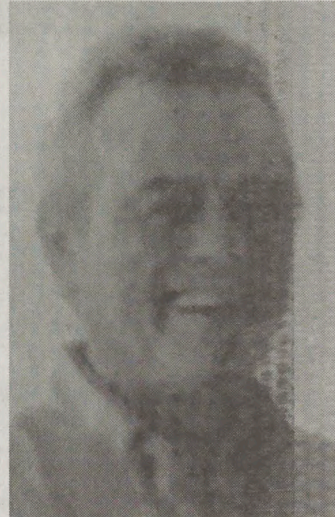

Jimmy continued his construction work and took a position with his friends at the Gearty Brothers Construction Company in Wilmington where he was employed until his illness forced him to retire.

Jimmy was a "good guy"; he was loyal, kind, and generous to a fault. Jimmy would give you the shirt off his back or the last dollar in his pocket if you needed it; he never turned anyone away. He enjoyed following all Boston and New England sports teams. Jimmy had a quiet demeanor, but a great sense of humor and he loved a good joke.

Most of all Jimmy loved his wife, his family, and his friends with all his heart; he cherished the times they spent together and made countless memories throughout the years. Jimmy will forever be in the hearts of those he loved, and he will be greatly missed.

Jimmy was the beloved husband of Heather A. (MacDonald) Landry of Billerica, the cherished son of the late Gustave F. and Lorraine M. This yard is saving the Ipswich River

It is no surprise. The 40+ mile river supplies water to 14 different communities, including towns which fall mostly, or completely, outside its watershed like Peabody, Lynn, Beverly and Salem. Water use increases dramatically during the warmer months of spring and summer, mostly due to non-essential uses like lawn watering. These increased withdrawals have a definite impact on the river, which is already stressed in summer months by higher temperatures and decreased rainfall.

There is no standard policy in place to keep the river from being pumped dry during dry weather. Towns reliant on the river for their water have varying levels of water restrictions, with some having only voluntary bans and others none at all.

Another complication is private wells, which in many towns are not subject to water restrictions despite drawing on the same groundwater the river and other water bodies need to recharge. The inequity in town restrictions means that often, by the time stronger restrictions are put in place, it's too late to prevent damage to the river. This damage includes the loss of wildlife and habitat that can take years to recover.

The solution for the problem of an overburdened Ipswich River already exists, the proof of which is the lawn signs, which read: "This yard is saving the Ipswich River. Conserve Water!"

These signs, distributed by the Ipswich River Watershed Association as part of their #4ourRiver sustainable landscapes campaign, indicate the homeowner, business or public space has made a commitment to protecting water.

The rules of sustainable landscaping are simple, and require little to no effort on the part of the property owner. They are low impact and not only save water, but help keep water in both the ground and waterways cleaner and safer.

Sustainable landscapes save water by watering minimally or not at all. There is a misconception that if a lawn is not watered during dry conditions it will die. These yard signs are showing how far from the truth that is. While during extreme drought grass will brown as it goes dormant, refraining from watering actually makes a lawn less likely to die by dry conditions.

A regularly watered lawn grows shallow roots, increasing its need to be constantly watered. Green lawns can be attained without watering, fertilizing, or relying on weed control. By refraining from chemical treatments, lawns won't add to the rainwater pollution that can result in algae blooms and closed beaches. They will also be safer for kids, pets and wildlife.

The ultimate goal of sustainable landscapes is to create a beautiful, healthier and more resilient community for people and nature, while preserving precious water resources for important human needs. The Ipswich River Watershed Association encourages everyone who wishes to keep our water clean and our water supply protected to join them in their campaign to promote and implement landscaping practices that are truly green.

MIDDLETON — Water restriction signs have been put in many North Shore towns and a new sign has appeared on properties from Wilmington to Ipswich. Both signs concern summer water use, with town signage alerting residents to conserve a vulnerable resource and these new lawn signs indicating the solution for keeping our water safe.

The Ipswich River suffers from chronic low flows in the summer and fall, which

Travel down the Concord and see nature and history

The Bedford-Carlisle Bridge as seen from the Bedford Boat launch.

The Concord is a short river, starting in Concord at Old Calf Pasture where the Assabet and Sudbury rivers join and runs approximately 16 miles to where it joins the Merrimack river in Lowell. The river is loaded with opportunities for water adventurers and nature lovers alike, and offers some interesting history as well. Excavations by the Massachusetts Archeological Society have found evidence of Archaic and Paleo families living along the river, dating back thousands of years. The Concord also used to support a large number of native tribes, including the Nipmuck, Pawtucket and Massachusetts. More recently, the Concord served as an engine for mills in North Billerica and Lowell, and dammed water at Faulkner Mill in North Billerica helped to support transport to Boston via the Middlesex Canal in the 1800s. Most recently, the short section just before the junction with the Merrimack, which offers Class III and IV rapids was considered as a venue for kayaking events when Boston was a candidate to host the Summer Olympics. The dam at Faulkner Mills splits the river into two sections for boating. The downstream section runs about two and a half miles to a put-in at Muldoon Park in Lowell. Dangerous rapids start beyond this point. In fact, urban whitewater rafting is offered in this section through Lowell Parks and Conservation Trust in collaboration with Zoar Outdoor in Lowell. The section running upstream from the dam is a real treat. There is no official put-in or parking, but one can launch a kayak or canoe near the commuter parking lot at Faulkner Mill. There are light rapids immediately, and once past those it's fun to paddle through Billerica and realize how close things really are. Closer to Route 3, there is an official put-in at Elsie Ave Conservation Area in Billerica, off of River Street. Once past Route 3, the river widens considerably and there is an abundance of open space and beautiful scenery. Soon after the Route 3 crossing, one passes Two Brothers Rocks on the left, chosen by two men in 1638 as boundary markers for their land. There are put-ins at Bartlett's Landing, at the very nice Bedford Boat Launch on Route 225, and finally at Old Café Pasture in Concord, which is just past the Old Manse and the Old North bridge, site of the famous revolutionary war battle. If you're feeling adventurous, you can continue up either the Assabet or Sudbury rivers at Egg Rock, where the rivers join to form the Concord. Thoreau wrote of the Concord in A Week on the Concord and Merrimack

Rivers, "Concord River is remarkable for the gentleness of its current, which is scarcely perceptible...", and this is indeed true, but there is a slow current so plan your upstream and downstream legs accordingly. The Sudbury-Assabet-Concord Wildlife Stewardship Council has a Concord River Boater's Trail Map on their website which proves handy. The map describes two specific paddles — one from Egg Rock in Concord to the Carlisle-Bedford Bridge, and one from the Carlisle-Bedford Bridge to the Middlesex Canal. If you'd like to give the river a try, but don't have a boat, kayak and canoe rentals can be found in Concord and Lowell. For the naturalist, the section of river upstream from Route 3 finds itself meandering past woodlands of River Birch and Red Maple and wetlands of Cattails and Great Bulrush. Ferns and waterlilies decorate the shores. Kayakers report birds following them for miles, seemingly interested in making contact or perhaps just curious? The river is teeming with wildlife so be on the lookout for turtles basking on downed trees and beavers or Great Blue heron. For the fisherperson, the Assabet and Sudbury are stocked with trout by the Massachusetts Department of Fisheries, but the Concord is not. Nonetheless, reports of carp, smallmouth bass, pickerel, largemouth bass, and American eel indicate there is opportunity for some success, though eating any fish from the river is not recommended due to Mercury levels. Catch and release is advised. As a tributary of the Merrimack, the Concord has a great history and is worth investigating by canoe or kayak. The Lowell Parks and Conservation Trust will be hosting a Concord River Greenway Clean Up on Sept. 29 at Davidson Street, Concord River Greenway Park in Lowell. <http://lowelllandtrust.org>

Corn on the cob is still very much in season

By HEATHER BURNS
News Correspondent

Anyone who has traveled down East Street near the Livingston Street intersection in Tewksbury has noticed the change in the scenery over the last few weeks. The corn in the state fields has progressively grown taller. Although the particular corn that is planted in the state fields is what is known as "Cattle Corn," used for animal feed and not human consumption, it still reminds us that corn on the cob peak season is upon us. Luckily, right at that same Tewksbury intersection is Farmer Dave's East Street Farm Stand. Farmer Dave Dumaresq owns and operates a 100 acre farm in Dracut, of which 20 acres is designated just for growing corn. Dumaresq has been farming since 1997, and has been running the East Street Farm Stand in Tewksbury since 2004. He also runs the Brox Farm Stand at 1276 Broadway in Dracut, and in 2015 started the Hill Orchard Farm Stand at 4 Hunt Road in Westford. Most of the corn supplied to The East Street Farm Stand comes from Farmer Dave's farm in Dracut, but occasionally the corn also comes from Lavopes Farm in Hollis, NH, depending on the harvest amounts for each day. But regardless of which farm it comes from, the corn is always fresh picked early in the morning and brought to the farm stand the same day, ensuring the freshest possible product. Farmer Dave also rents several fields for planting in Tewksbury. The first year he planted the Tewksbury fields he tried to grow corn, but found the soil was too sandy, and didn't have proper drainage to successfully grow corn. Now he uses the Tewksbury fields to grow other crops like melons, potatoes, onions, cucumbers and squash, all of which can also be purchased freshly picked at the East Street Farm Stand. When asked how the cold spring affected this year's corn crop, Dumaresq said, "the cold spring delayed the corn season by a week or two, but we will have extra corn later in the season that we may have missed out on earlier this spring."

Dumaresq expects this season to last until sometime between Oct. 15-25, depending on when the first hard frost will happen. East Street Farm Stand is offering two varieties of corn this season. The Butter/Sugar variety, known for its yellow and white kernels, is available now through early October. The Silver Queen variety, that has more of a translucent white colored kernel, is available late August or early September through October. Corn prices this season are, $6.99 per dozen, $3.99 per half dozen, and $.79 for a single ear. "The half dozen is the most popular amount we sell," said the East Street Farm Stand supervisor, Carla Melucci. "This year's corn is very good, juicy, delicious, and sweet. It's so sweet, my daughter likes to eat it raw!" But, if you don't choose to eat it raw, then what is the best way to store and prepare your freshly picked corn? It is always best to purchase your corn the day you plan to eat it. As soon as corn is picked, the flavor starts to change as the sugars immediately begin to turn to starch. Starch makes the corn tough. To ensure optimum freshness, place your corn in a paper bag with the husk still intact, and keep it in the refrigerator until you are ready to cook it. This will slow down the process of sugar turning to starch, keeping the corn tender and sweet longer. The traditional way to cook corn is to simply boil it. Cover a large pot filled with plenty of water and bring to a rapid boil. Some people like to add a pinch of sugar to the water, but never add salt, as salt will make the corn tough (save the salt for after it is cooked). For maximum freshness, shuck the corn just before boiling. Remove the silk (the hairy threads) and peel off the entire husk and discard. The silk can be stubborn and difficult to remove, so try wiping down the corn cob with a wet paper towel after the husk has been removed. Once the water comes to a rapid boil, add the corn and listen for the water to come back to a full boil, then remove from heat immediately to prevent over cooking. Surprisingly, corn on the cob is great right out of the microwave. Remove the husk and wrap corn cob individually in wax paper and twist the ends closed. Microwave for 1 ½ - 2 ½ minutes per ear. Unwrap carefully as corn will be steamy and hot. Another easy way to cook great tasting corn is on the grill. Remove the silk while keeping the husk mostly intact. Soak the corn ear in cool water for up to 30 minutes. Pat dry excess water from the corn cobs, and place corn (still in the husk) directly on a hot grill set on medium heat. Turn occasionally until husk has become slightly charred, about 10-20 minutes. It takes some experimenting to get the proper cook time for your grill. If you like the esthetics and charbroiled taste, after the corn is fully cooked, peel the husk off and place the corn back on the hot grill for a moment or two, being careful to keep a watchful eye, as it chars quickly. The East Street Farm Stand is open Monday - Friday, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. It doesn't matter if you choose to boil, microwave, or grill, fresh picked corn on the cob is available long after Labor Day, so you can enjoy that sweet, buttery, summertime favorite straight through the fall season.

To address opioid epidemic

P.A.A.R.I. granted $100k by Cummings Foundation

BOSTON — Executive Director Allie Hunter McDade is pleased to announce P.A.A.R.I. has been selected for a $100,000 grant from the Cummings Foundation to work with the Woburn, Wilmington, and Burlington Police Departments to create a regional effort to address the opioid epidemic.

This grant will build on P.A.A.R.I.'s current project with the Massachusetts Service Alliance and AmeriCorps to embed service members directly in police departments to assist with police-led opioid referral programs. P.A.A.R.I. will receive $50,000 per year for two years to provide the three police departments with three part-time Recovery Coaches and a regional full-time Program Coordinator to strengthen their efforts to prevent overdose deaths and expand access to treatment and recovery.

"We are thrilled to have been selected for a $100k for 100 grant from the Cummings Foundation," Hunter McDade said. "This grant will allow us to leverage our partnership with AmeriCorps to launch a new regional effort with Burlington, Woburn, Wilmington Police Departments. We're very grateful to the Cummings Foundation for supporting this important, life-saving initiative."

"The opioid crisis has touched virtually every city and town within the Commonwealth. This partnership forged through the P.A.A.R.I. AmeriCorps Program will make a very positive impact on people and families within not only Burlington but also the other communities in-involved in this partnership," Burlington Police Chief Michael Kent said.

"We are looking forward to this new opportunity and tool to provide our community, we are excited to enter into this grant with P.A.A.R.I. and AmeriCorps and to continue to build multi-town capacity by partnering with Burlington and Woburn Police Departments," said Wilmington Police Chief Michael Begonis.

"The Woburn police department is excited about our new partnership with PAARI, AmeriCorps and the communities of Burlington and Wilmington to work toward positive change for those impacted by the opioid crisis," said Woburn Police Chief Robert Ferullo.

The $100k for 100 program supports nonprofits that are based in and primarily serve Middlesex, Essex and Suffolk counties. Through this place-based initiative, Cummings Foundation aims to give back in the area where it owns commercial buildings.

Founded in 1970 by Bill Cummings of Winchester, the Woburn-based commercial real estate firm leases and manages 11 million square feet of space, the majority of which exclusively benefits the Foundation. The Cummings Foundation has awarded more than $220 million during this grant cycle.

The complete list of 100 grant winners is available at www.CummingsFoundation.org.

"We are indebted to non-profit organizations like P.A.A.R.I. that have a meaningful positive impact on the local communities where we colleagues live and work," said Joel Swets, Cummings Foundation's executive director. "We are delighted to invest in their important programs and services."

Wilmington resident and current P.A.A.R.I. AmeriCorps member Margie Taylor has been selected as the program's full-time regional Program Coordinator and PAARI is currently accepting applications for three half-time AmeriCorps members who will serve as Recovery Coaches, one embedded in each of the three partnering police departments. Interested candidates should visit paariusa.org/ameriCorps for more information and application instructions.

About P.A.A.R.I.

The Police Assisted Addiction & Recovery Initiative (P.A.A.R.I.) is a nonprofit organization with a mission to help law enforcement agencies nationwide create non-arrest pathways to treatment and recovery. Founded alongside the groundbreaking Gloucester Police Department Angel Initiative in June 2015, P.A.A.R.I. has been a driving force behind this rapidly expanding community policing movement.

They provide technical assistance, coaching, grants, and other capacity-building resources to more than 430 police departments in 32 states. They currently work with more than 80 law enforcement agencies in Massachusetts alone.

P.A.A.R.I. and its law enforcement partners are working towards a collective vision where non-arrest diversion programs become a standard policing practice across the country, thereby reducing overdose deaths, expanding access to treatment, improving public safety, reducing crime, diverting people away from the criminal justice system, and increasing trust between law enforcement and their communities.

Their programs and partners have saved thousands of lives, changed police culture, and reshaped the national conversation about the opioid epidemic.

West Nile Virus found in Nunn Road wetlands

WILMINGTON — A second positive mosquito pool for West Nile Virus has been found in the Nunn Road (off Adams Street) wetland area. Central Massachusetts Mosquito Control conducted additional spraying last night and will conducted more tonight.

West Nile Virus (WNV) and Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE or "Triple E") are viruses that can cause illness ranging from a mild fever to more serious disease like encephalitis or meningitis. They are spread to people through the bite of an infected mosquito. With the cooler weather the mosquito population will start to decline. There are no specific treatments for either virus, but steps can be taken to protect yourself from illness, including:

- Using insect repellents
- Wearing long-sleeved clothing
- Scheduling outdoor activities to avoid the hours around dawn and dusk
- Repairing damaged window screens
- Removing standing water from the areas around your home

For more information please contact the Wilmington Board of Health 978-658-4298 or visit www.mass.gov/dph/mosquito

- If there are multiple income sources with more than one frequency, the LEA must annualize all income by multiplying:
 - Weekly income by 52;
 - Bi-weekly income (received every two weeks) by 26;
 - Semi-monthly income (received twice a month) by 24;
 - Monthly income by 12.
- Do not round the values resulting from each conversion.
- Add all of the un-rounded converted values and compare the un-rounded converted total to the appropriate IEG for annual income for the household size.

- Refer to pages 32-36 in the Eligibility Manual for School Meals (July 2015) for more information.

and the size of the building, which is set on 39.5 acres of land.

"What I think is really unique about [613 Main St.] is it's an existing building that — it's very large," Kehlhem said of the 435,442-square-foot warehouse. "Compared to some of our other properties, that's on the larger side, so if anybody is looking for a large industrial space in the Northeast region, it kind of fills that need."

Previously occupied by a distribution company, Veritiv, the warehouse building has sat vacant since May 2017.

The Seyon Group, the property's current owners, are focusing on finding the right tenant to fill the space, and are not setting a time limit.

"We're going to wait for the right tenant," Bryan Blake, managing partner at The Seyon Group, said. "We've had a lot of interest in the building, but we will work with what we think is the best use and best tenant, and best profile of tenant not just for our investors but for the town itself. There's absolutely no rush to fill it."

Wilmington's Town Manager, Jeffrey Hull, described his idea of the right tenant in an email earlier this week.

"I would welcome a business that is attentive and responsive to the impact of its operation on its neighbors, that provides good well-paying jobs and that takes its role as a responsible corporate citizen of the community seriously."

representative position if they were elected. Both O'Connell and McCoy emphasized constituent service and accessibility, stating they hoped to follow the example Miceli set in regards to always being accessible. Robertson, having worked closely with Miceli for the past several years, emphasized this point, saying that he intended to always work for the issues the people were passionate about, just as Miceli had taught him.

The candidates were also asked whether they planned on keeping their current jobs and elected offices if elected to become State Representative. The majority of the candidates said that being State Representative would become their full-time job, and they planned on stepping down from their current positions if elected. Kratman strayed from the others, saying that he would need to keep up a second job while being State Representative, as he needs to support his family as his three children will be off to college in the near future. However, he maintained that the Representative position would be his main priority.

If interested in watching last week's debate, or seeing interviews from all the candidates, including Independent Patricia Meuse and Republican Pina Prinziavalli, who were not at the debate, they are available on the WCTV website, <http://wctv.org/election/>.

enough about how the seniors' involvement and dedication to iPods is just as valuable as his own role. For Theodos, it's the least that they could do in return for the bravery of these men and women.

"And the thank you that we give our soldiers is not enough," she shared. "[They] put their life in jeopardy and they're willing to defend our country."

She gives credit for the idea of the bracelets to Dr. Karen Clark, iPods' Fund-raiser Director and Public Relations. More than that, she appreciates the entire iPods organization and envies their ability to visit veterans all over the country on a regular basis.

The money that the seniors brought in will buy 80 MP3 players, and these will be given almost right away to injured servicemen and women since iPods is preparing for a tour of New England Veterans Administration hospitals.

"We're going through the entire New England health system."

From Aug. 24 to Oct. 27, they have scheduled upcoming visits at the VAs in Providence, RI; White River, VT; Leeds/North Hampton, MA; West Haven, CT; and Augusta, ME.

iPods for Wounded Veterans is currently focusing on meeting their mission statement by serving and delivering electronics, letters, and magazines to Massachusetts' injured and wounded veterans.

"Our number one priority is Massachusetts," Cardello explained.

After years and years of traveling to D.C., the team is changing their focus because they have this motivation to help the veterans closest to home, and they have the confidence of all of these seniors behind them.

While these hospitals are ready to provide volunteers to help when the iPods team arrives, Cardello is in a desperate search for volunteers to accompany them.

"We have the donations and the stock to do it...it is a lot of work," he said.

With all of their visits taking place on Saturdays, he included that there's opportunities for people who work during the week. Anyone interested and available to join Wilmington's iPods team as they visit with injured and wounded veterans at these hospitals can call Paul Cardello at 1-603-770-5336.

Wish Project accepting financial donations

considered a "goods bank," a place where social workers and their clients can come and find basic necessities, people in need can walk in off the street to get a coat, and emergency or disaster victims can find a bed, dishes or a table to get resettled.

The organization welcomes donations of clean and useable clothing, furniture which is suitable for a small apartment, and items to set up a living space such as toasters, dishes, and cutlery. Baby goods are also a large component of the items which serve young, often single mothers. Diapers and wipes are always in demand.

Those who donate to and help the organization gather goods should know that they are moving from their current location off of Plain Street in Lowell (near Target) to a new facility in North Chelmsford, not too far from the Drum Hill Rotary. The new location will house the operation for one year while the group seeks to find a permanent building.

A capital campaign will help raise money for the move and to help purchase a permanent space. Volunteers from around the Merrimack Valley, including teams from local companies, spent the last few weeks packing up the goods in the warehouse, dismantling the extensive racking system, and loading up the group's tractor trailer to move to the temporary space.

No goods donations are being accepted at this time while the transition is taking place, but they are accepting financial donations of any amount to help pay for the move and to hopefully buy a building of their own.

Executive director David Fitzgerald told the Town Crier that they are hoping to find an 8,000-10,000 square foot space in the Route 3/93/495 corridor so they can continue to serve those in need.

According to Fitzgerald, "the miracle was to find the [interim] property to move to, only three miles from our old space," and now they can "take the time to do it the proper way," meaning Fitzgerald can work with realtors and the community to find a space which will accommodate all the requirements of the non-profit over the long term.

The 5,000 sq ft former warehouse in North Chelmsford is ideal right now and though the inventory will have to be curtailed a bit, Fitzgerald said the move was a good chance to clean out their old location and part with some inventory that had been around for many years.

The organization holds several events throughout the year to fund different needs as well as collect supplies for specific populations. For example, the group has an emergency food box list, the contents of which would feed a family in a hotel room for a week. The Wish Project holds bed drives as a way to get children up off of floors, back to school backpack drives, a golf tournament, gala with silent auction, blanket projects and more.

The group has a large stable of volunteers from local companies who either donate goods, money or send employees to help on work days. Several volunteers and even some staff are former clients of the Wish Project who are now eager to give back.

According to Fitzgerald, restructuring the organization in recent years has been a priority to ensure financial stability and position the Wish Project for future growth. The warehouse runs on volunteer power and has only one paid staff member, is governed by a board of directors and has been fortunate to receive grant funding, though it relies almost exclusively on private donations.

Fitzgerald, who came to the Wish Project from the Boys

Scouts of America organization, points out that it is not only the tangible goods, but the "feeling that volunteers get when they help others" that is the real magic.

"We've had thousands of volunteers over the years, whether they help with our special projects like Mother's Day bags or whether they sort and fold clothing," he said.

A recent audit showed that over 50,000 people have been helped by the Wish Project and 125 families resettled after fires, numbers which astound Fitzgerald and fuel his optimism.

Fitzgerald hopes people will keep connected via their Facebook page thewishproject.org and watch for the re-opening soon. Financial donations are welcomed as are inquiries by companies who'd like to volunteer or those who may have a lead on a building.

Fitzgerald said that sites in Tewksbury, Wilmington, Billerica, Chelmsford, Lowell, Methuen, Westford, etc. would all be considered.

Bill Cavanaugh takes over as WPW President

By JAMIE POTE

jamiapote@hotmail.com
WILMINGTON - Back in March, Bill Cavanaugh was promoted as the New Deputy Fire Chief here in Wilmington. And this past Thursday night, he was at the Glen Road Palmer Football Fields overseeing the Wilmington Pop Warner program in his first year as the President, taking over for Debbie Smith, who retired after holding the spot the previous 16 years.

"Deb's been in the program a long time," said Cavanaugh. "She doesn't have any of her own kids in the program anymore, but she is still obviously involved. We talked about how the takeover was going to go and my experience running the Fire (Department) kind of helps. I think that helps it make it more of a fit."

"I've been a coach for five or six years, been on the Board (of Directors) for two years, but it's been more of a team effort. I know I have the title, but it's been all about the team effort. There's a lot of people doing a lot, a lot of work. It's been really good."

"We have a great group, a great treasurer and everyone takes turns with the snack shack and everyone is taking a little piece of the pie so to speak and really kind of making it their own thing. Everyone is just really working together."

"We are working through conflicts because we definitely have had our conflicts and setbacks. We have gone through our learning pains but we are getting there. And Deb's been great - she stays involved, she tells me what to look for and what's going on, and she is still on some of the other youth football boards so that helps, too."

Over the years a lot has happened in WPW. Numbers were drastically dropping and some teams couldn't field enough players. So besides Cavanaugh taking over, other drastic changes were made. The program decided to have the seventh and eighth graders form a "Middle School team" and that program is run by Joe McCauley, who had spent years as a coach in the WPW program and was going to replace Smith before deciding to take the middle school position.

"We currently have three teams, the E, D and C, and the same goes with cheer-leading," said Cavanaugh. "The Middle School program is not affiliated with us but Joe McCauley, who had been involved with us for years,

12-year-old challenged everyday with dyslexia

Walsh doesn't let anything stand in his way

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com
WILMINGTON - When Cullen Walsh has to accomplish something, you may not want to be the one who is in the way of him, both literally and figuratively. The 12-year-old certainly has a fierce competitive spirit in life, in school and of course in game that he loves, football.

The fifth year Wilmington Pop Warner player, who plays on both sides of the ball for the D-Team, is a wrecking machine on the field, tackling and blocking anyone and everything that comes near him. Off the field, he found out at a young age that he suffers from dyslexia, and over the years, the sixth grader has tackled those struggles as well.

"It's just his perseverance and never giving up," said Cullen's mother, Kristen, a 1997 Wilmington High Graduate. "When people told him he couldn't, he proves them wrong again and again. For Cullen, academically he struggles. He has severe 'Surface Dyslexia' so he has struggled his whole academic career. He attends 'The Landmark School' in Beverly. Cullen just has this attitude that nothing is going to hold him back. He works, really, really hard. When people tell him that he can't do something, he'll get to do anything he can to prove that he can and will. He just has that attitude which I think will just carry him. He takes pride in his work."

"Surface Dyslexia" is described as "a type of dyslexia, or reading disorder. Patients with this kind of disorder cannot recognize a word as a whole due to the damage of the left parietal or temporal lobe."

Cullen's father Tom was a former football player at Wakefield High School. When Cullen decided that he wanted to strap on the helmet, Tom wanted to make sure that he would help him in any way that he could.

"For a long time, and this is why I coach, the plan is to help him," said Tom, the assistant coach of the D-Team. "He needs repetitions, repetitions so I'm here to help him learn the play so it becomes muscle memory. Processing those plays initially is very difficult. The team has to slow down a little bit so he can read the card, but once he has it, he's full throttle. It's a difficult to have that processing issue with dyslexia to learn the different plays, to learn the different routes, to know what the different numbers are and to go out and perform that on the field which he totally excels at. It's a remarkable and it's been a very long and hard journey to get where he is today."

That journey started when Cullen was diagnosed with the learning disability when he was young, but today, he seems to manage it pretty well.

"He gets up at 5:45 everyday and he's on the bus by 6:45," said his father. "He's on the bus for an hour, then an hour home and doesn't get home until after four in the afternoon, then he's hitting football five nights a week so it's a fully day and certainly not easy. Everyday is a hard day for him to get up and go to school, but then gets to have his fun at football practice at night."

"Cullen went from a place where no one understood him to Landmark School where everybody is the same, everybody has the same issues and they all realize that. They quickly find out that their new friend plays football or hockey, and they are all alike and they finally understand that they are just like everybody else. The teachers (at Landmark) know how to teach the kids, they know when to let the kids play and explore, where you wouldn't get that from a regular public school."

While Cullen gets to explore and play in school so to speak, he does the same on the football field.

"There's certain kids who stand out all of the time and he's one of those kids," said D-Team Head Coach Shawn Maguire. "You just smile when you see him coming, you just smile. The kid is just born to play football. I know the stuff that he has dealt with, but his enthusiasm for the game, his energy level never stops. It's contagious amongst the kids. The kid just has a motor that runs, runs, runs, runs and runs. If there's a kid who is born to play football, it's him. He's just such a good kid. He learns in his own way, he understands and we do a lot of stuff offensively and it's pretty complicated for this level and he picks it up. He's awesome, just awesome. He's not afraid to ask questions and they are usually good questions, too. He just gets better every single day."

Last year, Maguire and the D-Team won the League Championship and finished with an 9-3 overall record, including playoffs. This year almost the entire roster is back, and Cullen said that the roster is pretty stacked.

"(Practices have gone) really good," he said. "I think we have a good group this year. We have most of the same guys we had last year and we made it to the championship."

Cullen lines up at nose guard on defense and then offensively, he alternates between right tackle and fullback. He was asked about playing those three spots.

"I like to run the ball and to truck people," he said, before being asked about being an offensive lineman, "It's not really tough, it's just mostly all fun."

As for defense, he summed it up pretty easily, "(Playing nose guard) is not tough," he said. "You just get in the backfield and destroy people."

Besides 'destroying people', Cullen lives a pretty typical 12-year-old life. He also plays baseball and hockey, he protects and plays with his younger brother Evan, who plays flag football, soccer and baseball, and Cullen goes to school everyday - one that he likes and most importantly one that has helped him tremendously.

"It's a great school for dyslexia," said Cullen. "They teach you the right way. It's just like being at a normal school, but they just teach you in a different way. They help you. We do tracking, we do syllable works - it's hard."

Certainly it has been for Cullen, but his mother said that thanks to the school, his family, friends, football coaches and teammates, it's much easier to handle knowing he has full support.

"It's not something that just affects the kid, it's something that affects the entire family and the family has to come behind the kid and support the kid," said Kristen. "What's great about Shawn (Maguire) is the way he coaches, and his techniques. Cullen knows that Shawn cares about him and not just with football, but in the classroom and in life."

After 45 years of coaching football, Austin Prep's Bill Maradei will retire

READING - With more wins than any Catholic high school football coach in state history, this fall will be Headmaster James Hickey. "In addition to football, I think Bill has coached just about every high school here at Austin Prep," said Director of Athletics Jonathan Pollard (Austin Prep class of 1997). "Often Coach's wins and championships overshadow what really has made him an exceptional coach - the positive impact he has on his players extends off the field."

He was named Football Coach of the Year in 1996 and 2009, and was inducted into the Massachusetts High School Football Coaches Hall of Fame in 2009. With a record of 265-146-4, Maradei ranks 11th on the Boston Herald's Top 25 Winningest High School Football Coaches in Massachusetts.

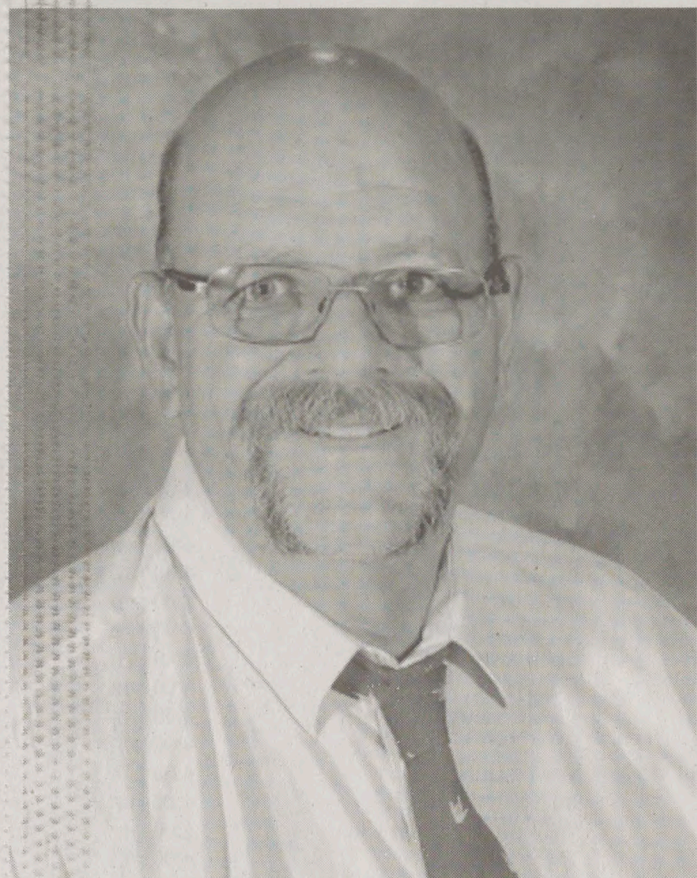

Sons Billy and Mark are 2011 and 2012 graduates of Austin Prep, respectively, and both played football for the Cougars under their father's direction.

"I'm very proud that my sons were able to play for me and now they coach with me," Maradei said. "I'm so lucky to have coached at two great schools."

His final game as Austin Prep head coach will be the Thanksgiving football game on Thur., Nov. 22 - a game that will be played on home turf. He teaches science in the middle school program at Austin Prep, and does not have any plans to retire from teaching at this time.

"I am thankful his final home game will be played here at Austin Prep on Fr. Seymour Field," Pollard said. "I am confident our fans will show their support throughout the season, but more specifically on our Thanksgiving Day game, as I am sure record numbers of alumni will be in attendance to see Coach off into retirement."

The Town Crier will have more on Maradei's career and retirement during the upcoming high school football season.

the final season for Bill Maradei at the helm of Austin Preparatory School football.

"I've enjoyed 45 years of coaching football and 40 years as a head coach," Maradei said. "It's time to move on. I want the focus of this season to be on my players but I also want to give the school a chance to find a successor."

Maradei has been a teacher at Austin Prep since 1993, when he took over the football program. He led the Cougars to two state championships in 1999 and 2009, a Super Bowl run in 1996, and numerous Catholic Central League championships.

"Coach Maradei has had an incredible impact on the lives of countless athletes who have played for him," said Austin Prep sport and the life lessons he taught on the football field made it onto many other fields. And those athletes are better for it, too. While it's easy to say Coach Maradei's legacy is football, in reality his legacy is the exceptional men and women he helped form with timeless values who are now leaving their mark on society. I'm so grateful to Bill for his exceptional sacrifice and commitment to Austin Prep."

Prior to joining Austin Prep, he coached at the now-closed St. Dominic Savio High School in East Boston, where he earned his first Super Bowl victory. He is the only coach in more than 80 years to win 100 games at two different schools.

"Coach Maradei's retirement is the end of an era

Fourth annual Alonardo Memorial 5K Road Race, Oct. 6

The fourth annual Tony Alonardo Memorial 5K Road Race event will take place on Saturday, October 6th at the Town Common.

The race starts at 9 am. You can register online through October 4th at racewire.com -- search for Tony Alonardo registration. Walk-up registration will be held the morning of the race beginning at 7:30 am (cash or checks only please).

A free t-shirt will be given out to the first 100 registrants. Additional t-shirts will be available for purchase the day of the event for $20.

"This will be the fourth year of the race and next year will be the last," said Donna Alonardo, Tony's wife and one of the organizers of the race. "When we began the race, it was projected to be a five-year event."

All of the proceeds from the race will go to a yearly scholarship in honor of Tony Alonardo. The scholarship is given to a WHS senior, and the recipient has to have participated in at least one sport at any level at the high school, and also submit a one page essay.

To date almost $10,000 has been given out in scholarships to various graduating seniors over the years.

Some of the money raised also is used to help offset college expenses for Tony's two daughters.

"It is a great day to celebrate the wonderful town of Wilmington and those who volunteer so much of their own time to better the lives of our youth," said Donna. "Tony's passion was hockey and he spent countless years volunteering in the Wilmington Youth Hockey program as well as the Wilmington Girls High School Hockey team."

You may also send donations and may do so by a check to: Tony Alonardo Fund Inc., 296 Shawsheen Ave, #8; For credit card donations, please enter your donation amount on the Racewire Form in the additional donations sections or at www.TonyA5K.com.

"It is always a feel good day for all who participate celebrating the life of a great guy who gave so much of his time to benefit so many kids," said Donna. "Every year Tony has found a way to let us know that he is there! Can't wait to see what happens this year."

Wingate nets first collegiate goal for Notre Dame

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. -- The No. 20 Notre Dame women's soccer team (3-1) were unable to pick-up its fourth-consecutive win to begin the season as they fell on the road to Butler 4-1 Sunday afternoon. The Bulldogs (3-0) struck in the opening minutes and scored twice in a three minute span in the second half to defeat the Irish.

Butler jumped out to an early lead on its first possession of the afternoon. Anja Savich switched the field over to Paige Monaghan who had some space heading into the box. She sent a low shot towards the far post and past Interian for the goal.

The best chance in the first half for the Irish came shortly after Butler opened the scoring. Eva Hurm made a run up the left side and beat her defender down the end line. As she got into the box, she sent a shot towards the far post but a Butler defender was on the goal line and sent the scoring chance away.

In the opening minutes of the second half, Wilmington resident Olivia Wingate, a freshman, beat her defender into the box and drew a penalty after a failed slide tackle. Wingate's penalty shot had great pace on it but Butler's keeper was able to dive and make the save.

The Bulldogs responded with the next chance in the 58th minute and they took full advantage. Butler's first shot of the possession was blocked but Morgan Kloosterman got to the rebound and slotted home a shot inside the left post for the goal.

Minutes later, the Bulldogs were pressing in the offensive third but Interian made another great save on Monaghan. The Bulldogs once again got to the rebound and Katie Soderstrom put home the goal between a couple of Irish defenders.

The Irish would not go away without a fight as moments later they got on the scoreboard. The play got started with a cross from Brooke VanDyck to Jennifer Westendorf, who was sitting at the top of the box. Westendorf had a great one-touch over to Wingate as she entered the box. Wingate made a move to her right and fired a shot to the left corner and beat the keeper for her first career goal.

Cavanaugh takes over as the new Wilmington Pop Warner President runs that and he has been awesome helping us in every way possible. Even though he is up at (Yentile Park) and is a totally different entity than us, it's been great having him around and having his knowledge."

Last year there were about 140 combined football players and cheerleaders. This year that number is about the same.

"Our numbers are same as last year but we're missing a team so I guess you could say that we went up a little bit," said Cavanaugh. "Hopefully next year we increase it a little bit more. The kids who are down here seem to love it. We are trying to listen to the kids, to the parents and their concerns, the constructive criticisms they may have and fix that whole dynamic as well."

Besides Cavanaugh, the rest of the Board of Directors includes Rich DeLucia as Vice President, David Putney as Treasurer, Dan Zuccaro as Football Director, while his wife

Christina is the Secretary and serves as the co-cheerleading director along with Danielle O'Connell.

Cavanaugh has been on the Fire Department since 2007 and before that he served in the US Navy. He also has spent a number of years in the WPW program as an assistant coach and board member. Now he is just adjusting to the everyday life of being the President of a program that is almost 60 years in existence.

"I float around the different football and cheerleading teams to see how they are doing, if they need anything, I float around the snack shack and do the same thing," said Cavanaugh, the father of Julia, Alyssa and Geoffrey, with his son currently in the program. "I just want to get to know the kids, the teams and the program so then this way the kids, coaches or parents, know who I am and they can come to me for anything. I get to hear the rumblings of what's going on of what people like, what they don't like, the complaints and the compliments.

"But to me I just want to see the kids grow, that's the best part about all of this. This my son's last year in the program so I'll enjoy that, but I'll enjoy watching all of the kids and that's the best part of it for me.

"All of the work we do in the summer and winter months when we are off, that's the meat of what keeps the program going. To be able to come down in August and September and watch the kids have fun, they are growing and they are learning."

The season officially gets underway on the weekend of September 9th. Wilmington still competes in Division 3.

"Our numbers are on the healthier side compared to the league, well besides Methuen and Billerica are both powerhouses. It's good though because the kids who are here are having fun and that's all I care about," he said.

The Wilmington BU14-1 youth travel soccer team did not let up a goal in four matches and went on to beat Saugus 3-0 in the finals to win the 2018 North Reading Fall Kickoff Classic. The team includes back row from left, Arnaud DeVerbigier, Collin McDade, Cooper Loisel, Ryan Willson, Luis Gunera, Jared Bishop, Dillon McGrath, Eric Fischer, Sebastian DeVerbigier, John McNamara, Scott Thomas and Mike Fischer; and front row from left: Jonathan Magliozzi, Evan Pinto, Lukas Charini, Patrick LeBlanc, Ryan Thomas, Michael Lewis, Ryan Bornstien, Austin Farrell and Nikos Koss.
